Completion cost cheaper than shutdown: Dawson

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Construction work will continue on major components of the ASRM complex at Stennis Space Center, despite fatal blows to the project's funding last week in Washington.

Michael Dawson, project director for the doomed facility, said Wednesday work will continues on four construction contracts which were at least 90 percent complete when the House and Senate voted to cease funding for the project.

It would cost more to cancel the four contracts than to have them completed, Dawson said. And at least the construction will provide a facility that's of potential use in the future, he added.

The ongoing construction lion contract for barge dock construction, Dawson said. That work also is 90 percent complete.

Two other smaller contracts, for an engineering building and control center, are 99 percent complete and will be finished as well, he said.

Overall, the facility was at a 70 percent completion stage.

Stop!

Signs ensure safety at railroad crossings

BY MARY G. SEILEY

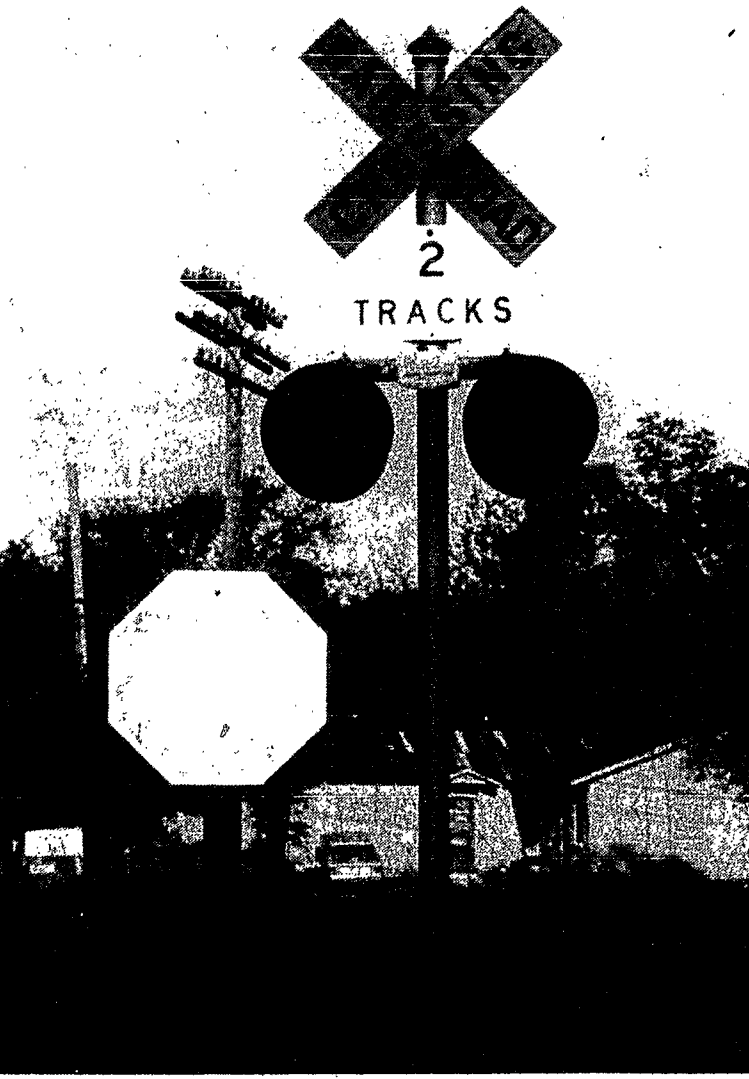

Bay St. Louis should be safer -- and a little slower -- with recent installation of stop signs at all the city's railroad crossings.

City workers have installed new stop signs at 10 of the city's 11 crossings, hoping to prevent accidents.

Ronnie Vanney, city public works director, said signs also were installed at the crossing on South Beach Boulevard, but have since been removed because they were redundant. That crossing is equipped with safety gates that lower to allow trains to pass.

Vanney said although the Second Street crossing is equipped with flashing lights, its new stop signs will remain in place for additional safety.

Meanwhile, Vanney's workers have been installing other traffic signs throughout the city, including speed limit warnings and children-at-play signs. He said new 15-mile-per-hour speed limit signs and stop signs will be posted soon in the Spanish Acres subdivision, in response to concerns of its citizens.

Third casino eyes county

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Two Los Angeles area investors are seeking permits to put a gambling barge near Bayou Caddy's Jubilee Casino on South Beach Boulevard.

The proposed casino would be the third to locate in Hancock County.

Alvin R. Perry, an attorney and partner in the project, said Monday the facility would be built on a barge located between Buccaneer State Park and the Jubilee, which is nearing completion at the western end of South Beach Boulevard.

"All things are flexible," Perry said, stressing the tentative nature of the project at this point. But he said he and his partner, Jim Pazargad, hope to have a floating casino some 63,000 to 68,000 square feet in size, employing approximately 500 workers. The proposed "Galaxy Casino" would feature a space and stars theme.

Parking to accommodate 1,000 vehicles would be on a pier built along an 1,800-foot frontage, Perry said. A 200-room hotel probably would be built in a second phase of the project, he added.

Perry, who serves as president of Galaxy Casinos, Inc., is an attorney and real estate developer from Woodland Hills, Calif. Pazargad, vice president of the corporation, lives in Reseda, Ca. Pazargad has experience in marketing for several casinos in Las Vegas, Perry said.

Perry said financing for the project is being developed while applications are pending with the state for site approval and operating permits.

Harrison supervisors say no dice to proposed Henderson Point casino

BY AMY PICKICH

Harrison County supervisors voted unanimously Monday to uphold their initial resolution deeming Henderson Point an unsuitable location for a casino.

The action came after an October 12 public hearing in which Spectrum Gaming of MS, Inc. and Concerned Citizens to Protect the Isles and the Point presented opposing views on the proposed site.

A crowd of more than 1,000, the majority of which opposed the proposed gaming site, turned out at the Gulfshore Baptist Assembly for the debate.

Board attorney Joe Meadows said the supervisors adopted the resolution that was tabled in August after reviewing all the evidence presented at the hearing.

The resolution states "opposition to the development of a dockside gaming facility in the Henderson Point-Pass Christian Isles area near or at the point where the Bay St. Louis bridge joins Harrison County, in that given nature, character, and use of the area make this area unsuitable as a location for a proposed dockside gaming facility."

Meadows said the resolution, along with evidence, will be sent to the State Gaming Commission in Jackson which will ultimately decide the fate of a casino location at Henderson Point.

Some of the evidence presented at the hearing included environmental issues, traffic safety concerns and casino evacuation plans.

Concerned Citizens chairman Nonnie DeBardeleben said, "We were really pleased with the decision and with the time and effort the supervisors put into making it."

"We are proud of the supervisors. We feel like they considered all the issues and didn't let the lure of dollars judge what's best for the whole county."

She said the group is now prepared to appear before the Gaming Commission in Jackson, where they have requested a public hearing.

The Concerned Citizens remain opposed to Spectrum's

Memorial Flag Drive reaches halfway mark

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Funding for the Bay Flag Memorial Drive is at a halfway point according to Gene Schloegel, organizer.

Pledges and contributions top $3,000 toward the $6,000 goal.

The drive, which is co-sponsored by the City of Bay St. Louis, American Legion Post 139 and Bay/Waveland Elks Club, is to purchase 90 American and 40 Mississippi flags, as well as a flag from each state. They will be displayed on the new light poles along Highway 90 in Bay St. Louis for special occasions and holidays.

The display of the flags will symbolize the residents' love of country and Bay St. Louis, and will welcome visitors to the area.

Two special dedication boards will be located at the Bay bridge to display 'Living Memorials' from contributors of $100 or more.

In addition to cash donations and pledges, several persons have made flag contributions, Schloegel said.

A test flag fly will be made November 9-16 on seven light poles at the intersection of Main and Highway 90.

Coast Electric Power Association will install the lines for the test fly, which will also include the annual Veterans Day Parade scheduled for Nov. 11.

The drive to raise the $6,000 is completely funded by donations and gifts and 100% of the monies raised go for the purchase of flags and hardware for the flag memorials, Schloegel said.

The Bay/Waveland Elks Lodge is scheduled to collect

Dawson said that figure includes a $10 million contract which had not been awarded -- and which won't be -- to build a deflection ramp structure, pave roads, construct utilities and build a communications system tying the test stand to the control center some two miles away.

The facilities are part of a $4 billion plan NASA had to create an advanced solid fuel motor for the space shuttle's boosters. The motor would have been built in a plant in northeastern Mississippi, and tested at the Hancock County facility. In all, the investment at Stennis would have totaled some $55 million.

Cancellation of the project means termination of 25 to 30 engineers and technical personnel at Stennis within about 60 days, said Dawson. Those professionals would have been the core group of about 200 personnel in the operational stage.

Dawson said efforts will be ongoing to find alternative uses for the facilities now in place at Stennis, including a major push to transfer a thrust measuring system from Utah to Stennis.

The system allows testing of larger motors than the boosters now tested at Stennis, including hybrid models using solid fuel cores with liquid oxygen oxidizers.

The hybrid motor version under development, he said,

"has some of the best features" of the liquid-fueled engines now in use and the advanced solid fuel motors in the ASRM program.

Dawson said while the hybrid technology poses the "primary potential" for use of the new facilities at Stennis, chances of getting the equipment from Utah are not good for the immediate future.

Aside from the new buildings and test facilities which will be completed before the program faces total shutdown, Dawson said the ASRM project's controversy from an environmental standpoint left a positive legacy in its wake.

"Those of us who manage these programs have gone beyond what's necessary," he said, spending a large portion of the budget to ensure compliance with extraordinarily stringent air quality and wetlands permit requirements. The requirements, he said, were the toughest NASA has ever had to live by in any project.

Rather than proceed with "reckless abandonment," Dawson said, the project's officials proceeded methodically and at great expense to protect the environment. And, he added, the project stayed within budget consistently.

"We were good stewards of the taxpayers' dollars," Dawson said.

Historical Society members portray citizens of the past in Cedar Rest Cemetery Sunday

BY MARY G. SEILEY

A tour that may send shivers through your bones is planned for Halloween in Bay St. Louis' Cedar Rest Cemetery.

Members of the Hancock County Historical Society -- 13 of them -- will stage portrayals of inhabitants of the cemetery on Second Street. They will be dressed as their subjects would have been in the times they lived, said Patt Cucullu, a member of the society participating in the event.

Beginning at 5 p.m., the participants will "recount the lives of these people and their effect on Bay St. Louis," she said. Other society members, equipped with flashlights and lanterns, will serve as tour guides through the cemetery. Refreshments will be served after the event at the Hancock Historical Society House on Cue Street.

Cucullu said while the idea for the event isn't original, it is the first such effort by the local historical society. The program is patterned after an annual event held in Columbus, Miss., she said.

A roster of the deceased to be featured locally includes:

—Lorene Poillion, a five-year-old whose death was related to over-consumption of green apples Cucullu said;

—Powhattan Robertson, an Indian who married a local man;

—Ginger Paradise, a gypsy; —Former Bay St. Louis Mayor J. B. Toume;

—The late Charles Breath, a banker who died one fateful Halloween, will be portrayed by his grandson, of the same name;

—Cucullu is planning to highlight the life of Kate Lobrano, whose family donated the Cue Street house that the historical society occupies.

Other society members participating as cemetery notables include Cucullu's husband, Irwin; Yancy Pogue, Al

Showers, Clem Ackers, Jo Ann Mumme, Emily Taylor, Dave Reynolds, Richard Johnson, Marlene Johnson, Edith Back and Gretchen Likes.

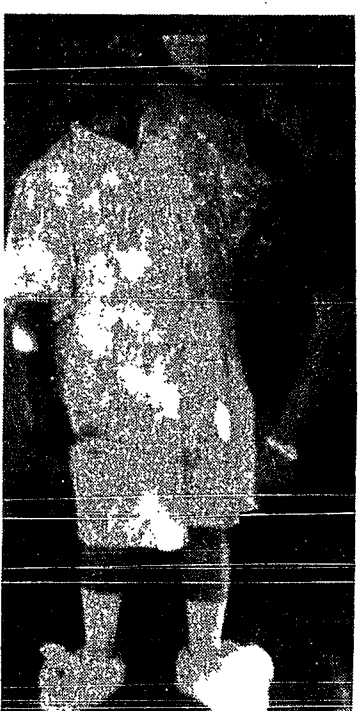

Additional members serving as guides include: Meg Hilliker, Lois Abrams, Evie Gordon, Greg Perry, Rosemary Ramelli, Margaret Williamson, Ursula Smith, Neil Smith, Mike Cuevas, Norma Jean Soro, Nan Ehrbright and Charles Gray.

Cucullu said the cemetery event, free to the public, isn't a Halloween party, and will be conducted with all due respect to the deceased who are portrayed.

P&H investigation still a 'rumor'

BY AMY PICKICH

Rumors of an investigation concerning the resignation of Hancock Port and Harbor Commission director Harold "Buz" Olsen still circulate in the county, but no reports have been confirmed.

Said Deputy State Auditor Tommy Dyson, "I heard something about some irregularity at the Port and Harbor Commission, but we are not involved in it right now."

"If the D.A. brings information to us, we will investigate," Dyson said.

On Friday, Port and Harbor Commission president Dave McDonald accepted Olsen's resignation "with regrets". Olsen cited "personal reasons" for his resignation from the post he has held since 1987.

District Attorney Cono Caranna said he had no comment at this point concerning an investigation.

Supervisor president Mike Ladner who said last week he expected an investigation, could not be reached for comment.

proposed location for the 30,000-sq.-ft. casino. They maintain the area is residential and unsuitable for a casino.

If licensed, Spectrum's proposed casino would be located east of the Bay St. Louis Bridge and south of Highway 90 at the end of Third Avenue and Ninth Street at Henderson Point.

Said Spectrum spokesman Bill Morrison, "We were disappointed...Right now we are re-evaluating our position in light of the outcome."

Morrison said he could not speculate on other proposed

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Football action on the high school level has two more regularly scheduled games left for the season.

The Tigers of Bay High on Friday will journey to Bearcat territory in Long Beach.

Bay High, the county champs this year because of victories over Hancock High and St. Stanislaus, will be trying to improve their record to 5-4 for the season.

The Tigers and Hawks were in a thriller last week with Bay High getting the 17-13 edge.

Hancock will visit the territory of strong Pearl River Central and need to be extra sharp to even their record at 5-5.

Hancock can be explosive, but will need a mistake-free game to tame Pearl River Central.

The Rocks of St. Stanislaus still seek their first victory of the season and will play host to the St. Martin Yellow Jackets.

St. Stanislaus fell prey to East Central's Hornets last week, still they keep trying.

I cannot say with a little luck, but maybe big luck, and who knows, the Rocks could still pull an upset.

Remember, games start at 7:30 p.m., and your favorite team needs your support in the stands.

I hope to see you at the game.

One wonders where the time goes, as Halloween will be here in a few days, and this is followed by All Saints Day. It is the time for many residents to spruce up the grave sites of their deceased family members.

I understand a group of trustees from the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility has been busy in recent days helping clean up some of the county cemeteries.

The trustees are under the supervision of a deputy sheriff, and this is a very good and needed community service.

The Hancock County Historical Society has a very interesting program planned for Halloween at the Cedar Rest Cemetery.

They will offer a tour of the cemetery with 'Portrayals of Citizens of Our Past' starting at 5 p.m.

Admission will be free and a 'fun time' is being offered to anyone interested in visiting the cemetery.

I have known several of the citizens who will be portrayed, worked with one for many years, and one is even a cousin of my wife.

For some 20 years I worked next door to Cedar Rest Cemetery, and I never remember anything such as the program the Historical Society will be presenting.

It sounds very interesting to me, and I am hoping there will be many who will drop by and check the action out. Many tour guides will be on hand to lead you to the various stations.

While on the subject of Halloween, there will be a Haunted House and Space Walk Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the McDonald Field, Dunbar and Ulman avenues, Bay St. Louis.

The Haunted House is sponsored by the Bay-Waveland Girls Softball Booster Association.

The event is set from 6 p.m. to midnight, and it is reported it 'Will Scare You to Death Silly.'

Admission for the fund raiser is $1.50 adults and $1 for children. It is also said to be fun for the whole family.

Sounds like it may be something you may want to visit, too.

The Pass Christian Reserve Police Officers will be hosting a fund raising fish fry Friday between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the corner of Fleitas and Ladnier.

There is a donation of $3 per plate which will include fish, potato salad, vegetables and bread. Proceeds will go towards buying portable radios for reserve officers.

House approves energy and water appropriations conference report

$7 million for an ongoing channel deepening project for the state's port at Gulfport, and $4.4 million to maintain Pascagoula's channels and harbors, were both included in a $22.2 billion Energy and Water Appropriations conference report passed by the House.

All total, South Mississippi stands to receive $16 million in funds for eight water and annual maintenance projects as a result of the legislation, U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor announced.

"Mississippi is well on its way of meeting the nation's shipping and commerce needs of the 21st century," Taylor said. "As our ports grow, we are making ourselves more accessible to larger cargo ships, we are improving the navigability of our waterways and most importantly, we are improving the economic well being of our state."

Once the conference report is approved by the Senate, it will be sent to the President for his signature.

Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties will receive $550,000 to study flooding problems along the Coast. The Army Corps of Engineers will focus on flooding and washout areas in all three coastal counties. In addition, the Pascagoula River Basin will receive specific funding.

Jackson County will also get $800,000 in new funds to widen and deepen the Port of Pascagoula's harbor and channel.

Additionally, $40,000 was included to begin action on an alternative water supply system for Jackson County residents and industries.

Also included in the appropriations report is $693,000 Congressman Taylor requested for the dredging of Pass Christian Harbor. Pass Christian Mayor Ted Lawyer said the improvements will considerably enhance operations at the city dock.

"I appreciate, and all of Pass Christian appreciate Rep. Taylor's help on this vital project," Lawyer said. "For many years we have experienced problems related to the shoaling in the harbor. This project will allow shrimpers and pleasure boaters, who have run into problems maneuvering the shallow harbor, easier access to slips and dock facilities."

Gulfport Harbor will get $7 million to continue the state's deep-draft project. The multi-year project to deepen the Gulfport channel to its desired 36 feet is expected to double commerce at the port once completed. $2.1 million will go toward operation and management of the harbor.

Upon passage of the conference report, Rep. Taylor said the widening and deepening of South Mississippi's channels will increase trade activity throughout our entire state and will considerably enhance the safety and efficiency of port operations.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Drivers disregard laws and others on the road

Dear Editor,

Reference to the tragic accident last week, in which a nine-year-old boy was struck and killed on Old Spanish Trail and Louis Piernas Street (near the fire department).

I've traveled the route of Old Spanish Trail past this same area last year several times in order to deliver and return my son to and from school, and I've noticed that the school bus picks up and discharges about eight or more young children each day, and the kids then go up and down the highway playing like puppies, dodging and running out into the traffic with no regard for oncoming cars or their safety.

I've had some dash out in front of my car several times, and I've stopped and fussed at them only to have them give me an obscene gesture and shout that "you're full of..." while they continue to play and romp on the highway.

Many times I've moved through there with my heart in my throat as these children play in the highway, moving about five or ten mph.

Why does the school bus dump these kids on the highway when there's a road around the block that would remove them from such danger? I can never understand the school board refusing to spend about 1/50th of a cent's worth of gas to risk the lives of the children on board.

Also, the number of blatant traffic violations lately is really incredible — actually unbelievable! Stop signs don't mean a thing as most drivers sail right through without hesitation.

In fact, at one time I stopped at a very dangerous corner of Longfellow and Highway 603 only to have a pickup slam on his brakes nearly running into my rear, and the driver jumped out, ran up and yelled, "What the h... you stop for, stupid? I almost hit you!"

I told him, "It's the law. Don't you see that stop sign?" He got real nasty and said, "Law — Schmwaw!! That's just a piece of decoration to make the road pretty! I don't pay attention to them things!"

Red lights don't seem to deter them either — and the number of cars coming at you down 603 and I-10 with only one headlight is actually even more surprising! Try looking around and you'll see many cars with no license plate or expired plate or inspection tags.

How many times have you been blinded by oncoming cars with full high-beam headlights aimed right into your eyes at night? Doesn't anyone know how dangerous this is? Some people tell you to not look at the lights, but stare instead at the curb to the right. Yeah, and you suddenly come upon a pedestrian or bike rider in the blind spot on the right!

Most of this is simply contempt for other drivers on the road. These people have absolutely no consideration for others at all. Some of them even have a bank of brilliant, blinding lights aimed directly into the eyes of oncoming motorists!

Where is the law in all of these cases? Are they not interested in doing their duty to protect the safety of the public?

Sincerely,
Paul D. Gilbert

Now is the time to reopen the bufferzone

Dear Editor,

The defeat of the ASRM program was a great achievement for a group of people who faced tremendous odds. The achievement was not just the termination of a single wasteful government program, it set a precedence in Congress.

The next to fall was the Superconducting Super Collider. As free-lance writer Guy Land put it, Congress is recognizing how the public's perception that many of the items contained in appropriations bills are wasteful pork. Members of Congress are pressing to delete them from the bills entirely. Congratulations, Citizens for a Healthy Environment (CHE)!

Now that the ASRM program is over, and according to Senator Trent Lott, there are no new big programs slated for the Stennis Space Center, now would be a good time to do something about the SSC buffer zone. This is a good indication that the political environment on the federal level is ripe for change. But first, the political attitudes on the state and county level must change.

Sharon Ebner of the Sun Herald explained how CHE built a national coalition of environmental, taxpayer and technical groups that lobbied Congress to kill the ASRM program.

This is a good example for the land owners and people who wish to do something about the buffer zone to follow. The national organization, Fairness to Land Owners Committee would be a good organization to form a coalition with. The ACLU is another. These organizations would not only provide political support but legal as well.

The land owners' lawsuit in regards to the ASRM program and the buffer zone easement is still alive. Since the intent of NASA to expand the parameters of the easement has been established, the suit should continue even though the ASRM program is dead. The suit alone could force NASA to renegotiate the easements or clarify the rights of property owners and NASA's obligations to them.

In 1961, Senator Stennis promised the land owners that NASA would return their land after the Apollo program. When the government filed suit in 1961 to condemn some 116,650 acres in Hancock and Pearl River counties, they failed to inform the land owners of their legal rights.

When the government paid what they called fair market value, as little as $4.65 per acre in some cases, they failed to include a 30-year projected income value and failed to compensate for taxes.

The power to condemn private property found to be a menace to public health or safety is not the power of eminent domain, but part of the police power and may not be exercised by the national government within a state.

But when the property is used for which it was condemned (i.e. Mississippi Hospital Center and McLeod Park) renders the easement moot.

Consideration must be given to the structures located in the fee area (i.e. Navy Oceanographic Command Center, Rouchon House, Child Care Center, etc. produces a condition of unclean hands where a court will not enforce a servitude if the person seeking enforcement is violating a similar restriction on his own land. This defense will apply even if the violation is less serious, as long as it is of the same general nature.

The economic impact of releasing the buffer zone is obvious. Just look at the phenomenal growth of Huntsville, Ala. where there is no buffer zone between the NASA and Redstone rocket testing facilities and the city.

The growth of Hancock County is expanding to its full potential due to the restrictions of over one-third of the county by NASA, and the expansion is due to primarily the gaming industry. It is imperative to release the buffer zone.

Sincerely,
Joey G. Manieri

ON PATROL

BURGLARIES

One adult and three juveniles were arrested and charged with four burglaries in Bay St. Louis, nine in Pass Christian and one count of grand larceny, according to Sheriff's Department investigator Nathan Hoda.

Hoda said Carl Sanchez, 19, and a male juvenile, both of Thibodaux, La. and two female juveniles from Texas and Louisiana were arrested around 3 a.m. Tuesday on Highway 603.

Hoda said officers attempted to stop the male juvenile for a motorcycle helmet violation as he trailed a car driven by the other three suspects.

According to Hoda, when the juvenile realized he was being followed, he got in the car with the others, leaving the motorcycle, which was stolen earlier in Harrison County, in Kiln.

Deputies Donnie Gambill and Warren Scelson found handguns and other items in the car when it was stopped at Stennis International Airport Road.

Assisting officers were Norman Willette and Rick Boutwell, Hoda said.

Sanchez and the 15-year-old male, both from Thibodaux were also arrested Wednesday around 5 p.m. by the Waveland Police Department, according to Police Chief Jimmy Varnell.

Varnell said both are charged with the burglary of a dwelling and the shooting into an inhabited dwelling in the Idlewood Subdivision on October 21.

Sanchez is being held on a $20,000 bond. The juvenile is being held by youth court authorities, according to Varnell.

Plans are being finalized for the annual Christmas parade to precede a charity football game.

The parade, scheduled to roll at 11 a.m., promises to be the biggest ever, with numerous units already committed to participate.

Anyone interested in participating may call the chamber office at 467-9048.

Immediately following the parade, the Operation Merry Christmas charity football game will be played at the Bay High School stadium on Athletic Drive in Bay St. Louis.

Annual Thanksgiving service set Nov. 23

The annual community Thanksgiving service has been set for Tuesday, Nov. 23 at 7 p.m. The service will be held this year at Main Street United Methodist Church on the corner of Main Street and Second Street.

The Hancock County Emergency Relief Fund has been sponsoring the Thanksgiving service for many years. Donations are received at the service in the form of an offering which helps sponsor the Relief Fund.

Clergy of the different churches of our area will be conducting different parts of the service. Choirs from several of the churches will perform.

Among them will be the choirs of Main Street United Methodist Church and the Children's Choir of Valena C. Jones United Methodist Church. Fr. Mike Suchaarski of St. Augustine Seminary will deliver the message.

Refreshments will be served in the new multi-purpose building at Main Street Methodist. This building was just recently completed, and this will be only the second time for it to be used. The public is invited to come to the service and stay to view the new facility.

The Hancock County Emergency Relief Fund helps provide for people in times of emergency. It is sponsored primarily by United Way of South Mississippi. Other donations come from individuals and area churches.

Each month one of the pastors of the area takes the responsibility of distributing the funds as they are available.

The Hancock County Sheriff's Department handles the fund on weekends and when the person in need is from out of town.

While it is called the community Thanksgiving service, this event actually draws from churches all over the county.

College Football Highlights

For Oct. 30

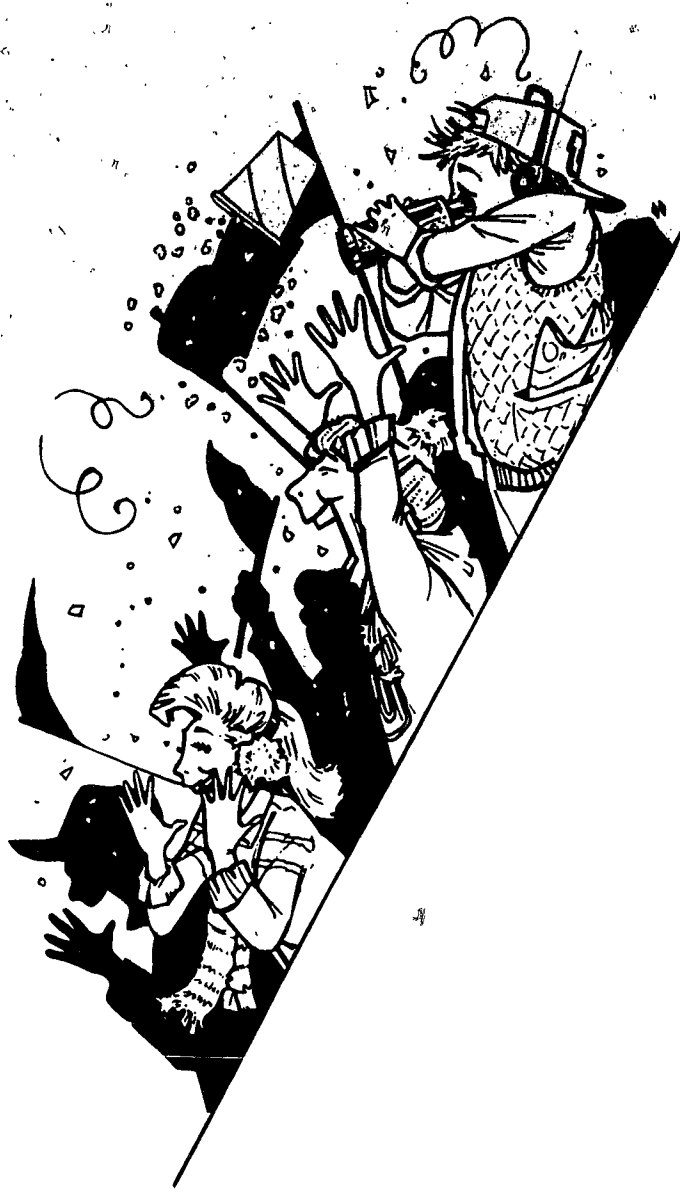

There's nothing more intriguing than a game between two college powers that aren't familiar rivals, and this week in Columbus, Ohio, Penn State and Ohio State face off for the first time in 13 years. The Buckeyes and Nittany Lions have met only eight times, most recently in the 1980 Fiesta Bowl, won by Penn State 31-19. The Lions lead the series 6-2, but we think Ohio State will make it 6-3. Penn State was surprised by Michigan two weeks ago, while Ohio State kept rolling along toward last week's game with Purdue. The Buckeyes, arguably the best team in the country, last beat the Lions in '76. This week they'll be three points better.

In Jacksonville, Fla., Florida and Georgia meet for the 71st time. The Gators have won the last three, led by departed All-Southeastern Conference quarterback Shane Matthews, who seemed to have Georgia's number. In his three games against the Bulldogs, Matthews threw for nine touchdowns and 948 yards, including 301 yards in last year's 26-24 win. Auburn handed Florida its first post-Matthews-era loss two weeks ago, but the Gators still look to be about a touchdown better than Georgia. For what it's worth, Florida hasn't beaten Georgia four years in a row since 1960-63.

The Wisconsin Badgers are the talk of college football, and this week they face their first real gut check, a home game against Michigan. The Wolverines have won the last nine games in this series, including a 41-3 route in '90, but few fans of either team have forgotten the last Wisconsin win: In the '81 season opener, the Badgers stunned then No. 1-ranked Michigan 21-14. We're picking the Wolverines by a point, but if Wisconsin QB Darrell Bevell is fully recovered from the sprained hip he suffered two weeks ago against Purdue, this could be a great game.

In the Big Eight, Colorado hosts Nebraska. Last year in Lincoln the Cornhuskers bombed the Buffaloes 52-7, but this weekend it'll be a lot closer. And in the Pacific-10, Southern Cal should squeak by California and spoil the Bear's homecoming. Last year, in L.A., the Trojans won 27-24 — not quite the revenge they hoped for after Cal's runaway 52-30 triumph in '91, the highest score ever against USC.

Our forecasting average is inching upward. Through Oct. 16 we'd picked 1,032 games right and 361 wrong, a percentage of .741.

NFL Forecast for Sunday and Monday Oct. 31-Nov. 1

*Atlanta, 21—Tampa Bay, 16

The Falcons have beaten the Buccaneers by a combined 78-14 the past two years, but this might have been a tossup if Atlanta hadn't come alive against the Rams two weeks ago. T. B. lacks offense.

Dallas, 30—Philadelphia, 23

While Dallas is regaining the look of a Super Bowl champion, Philadelphia isn't the same team without Randall Cunningham. They last met in a '92 division playoff won by the Cowboys, 34-10.

*Denver, 24—Seattle, 12

You'd think the Seahawks would be easy victims twice a year for the Broncos in the AFC West, but they've split since '90, the home team winning six in a row — all by six points or less. Till now.

*Green Bay, 22—Chicago, 20

This game is anyone's guess. The Packers have the better offense, but the Bears play better D. Chicago has won five of the last six in this series, so our pick of the Pack is a slight upset.

*Indianapolis, 26—New England, 17

The Colts were overtime victims in one of the Patriots' two wins in '92, 37-34, then ended an embarrassing three-game losing streak against N.E. with a 6-0 win on a frigid Dec. day in Foxboro.

*L.A. Raiders, 23—San Diego, 13

If the Chargers don't start playing like they mean it, they may follow last year's AFC West title with a last-place finish. The Raiders will shut the Chargers down with their top-notch defense.

*Miami, 31—Kansas City, 27

Call this one the QB battle that might've been... or may still be: Dan Marino's backup, Scott Mitchell, is no slouch. Despite their record, the Chiefs aren't mowing down their opponents.

*Minnesota, 28—Detroit, 25

The key to this big NFC Central game may be how well the Lions' Barry Sanders, the NFL's top rusher, does against the top-rated Viking defense. Detroit does well in the Metrodome — usually.

New Orleans, 32—Phoenix, 24

The Saints have won three straight from the Cardinals, the last two in Phoenix. With Pittsburgh's two-week-old wake-up call still ringing in its ears, N.O.'s ground game will grind Phoenix up.

*N.Y. Giants, 30—N.Y. Jets, 19

The New York/New Jersey series stands at three games apiece. When they last met five years ago, the Jets were 27-21 winners at home. This year the Giants will be even tougher at home.

*San Francisco, 31—L.A. Rams, 17

In their last five games against the 49ers, the Rams have been closer than 16 points only once — a 27-24 thriller in S.F. early last year that the 49ers won with a last-second field goal.

*Buffalo, 27—Washington, 12

(Monday) From the looks of the Redskins thus far, the only thing that may keep this game close is frustration brought to the boiling point. They last met in the '92 Super Bowl, a 37-24 'Skins win.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

What about that croaker hole?

It's time to go fishin' y'all.

All right, people, you say you went to the croaker hole at the mouth of the Pearl River and you did not catch many croakers. You found out that your boat needs a bigger anchor in order to stay in the middle of the croaker hole, because the tide sometimes runs a "little" fast in this spot. You say that the Turtle is full of prune stuffing for advising you to try this particular spot?

Let me answer all of these fearful accusations one at a time.

First of all, the Turtle is not full of prune stuffing. The Turtle is full of horse feathers.

Now let's talk about the way to fish the "croaker hole." There is no need to even try the hole when the tide is running full blast, because the chances are you are not gonna' catch anything other than a cold. The reason for this is the croakers have to work too hard to stay in position to get their meals when the tide is roaring to beat the band.

Why waste energy chasing food, when you can wait till the tide slacks off and have it fall into your mouth? That is why the best time for you to fish the croaker hole is when the tide is dead or running dead slow.

For those folks who don't use 900-pound anchors, they find that their anchor generally holds their boat in position "more better" when the water is not moving 1,000 miles per hour.

Now that we have all of that stuff out of the way, I can report that some nice croakers and white trout have been caught in the croaker hole during the past week on a slack or slow-moving tide.

I have to say that the croakers are not as plentiful as they were 15 or 20 years ago, but you can still catch a bunch to eat if you fish during the right tidal movement.

The croakers are being caught using dead bait fished on the bottom. An alternative method some folks are using is to use shrimp to catch a few croakers, then cut small strips off a croaker to use for bait to catch more croakers.

This method should be considered by everyone who fishes this area. The reason for using cut bait is the Pin fish have moved into this area big time plenty. These notorious hook polishers will have you questioning their ancestry in no time flat if you only fish with dead shrimp. I call them hook polishers because they take dead shrimp off the hook so smoothly and fast that they polish the hooks.

How do you get to the "croaker hole?" By boat, of course. Unless, of course, you can walk on water and stand on water while fishin'. For most normal people, you can launch your boat at LaFrance Fish Camp down in Ansley.

Once you go down the short (one block) distance to the main canal, you turn right and head for the Pearl River. When you get to the river you will see the railroad bridge that crosses the river. The croaker hole will be on the Sound side of the bridge. A depth finder is very helpful to use in this area to find the hole. The best side of the hole to fish is the drop-off on the up-current side.

Some of the fishing buddies have told me they have marked an X on the water in the best spot. Others told me they marked an X on the side of their boat when they anchored in the best spot. You can look for these X's, but I have been unable to find the ones that were marked in the water.

The ones on the boats must have moved, too, 'cause I could not find them either. Maybe Toxie Hall at LaFrance's can tell you the best place to look to find the X's that mark the croaker hole.

Another place that should not be passed up when you fish this area is Herron Bay. Johnny Davis reports he caught about 30 nice flounders working the shore line in Herron Bay. Gator Lee has been murdering the flounder in this area on a regular basis.

The way to fish for founders in the Herron Bay area seems to be to use an electric trolling motor to work the shoreline with jig heads that have a small piece of cut founder belly attached to the hook.

Final call, well not final but almost final, for anybody who wants to enter a fish in the Bay-Waveland Elks fishing rodeo. The rodeo will end Nov. 8. This puppy has been going on since June 1.

The awards ceremony will be Nov. 21 at the Elks Lodge. Anybody needing any additional information, call Ross Burke at 467-1372, or Francis Fahrenhold or Ed Baxter. It helps if you use a telephone to call them for the information, unless you have a really loud calling voice.

This week's wonderful wise words: Use waterproof ink to make the X on the water for your fishin' spot.

How do you get full of horse feathers, Turtle?

Sharks take first place in U-8

SHARKS VS BLUE MARLINS

Kent Benigno scored six goals as the Sharks took sole possession of first place in the BAYS U-8 standings.

In the first half, the Blue Marlins appeared determined to upset the Sharks, allowing only one goal behind the defensive efforts of Dwayne Garcia, Sean Harris, Jason Lewis and James Wahl.

The Sharks on the attack were Beau Brodtman, Nick Cooper, Jacob Durbin and Stephen Boh.

Attacking offensively for the Alcan Cable-sponsored Marlins were Brad Farrar, Paul Loiacano and Marshall Wyle, each of whom pushed the ball upfield to threaten the Shark goal. Blaine Durbin, Chris Braud and Jonathan McShane provided the defensive front for the Sharks and helped preserve the shutout.

RENEGADES VS STINGRAYS

Josh Cozzens, Heath Hansell and Timmy Kulikowski led the offensive charge for the Renegades with Kulikowski scoring four goals and Cozzens adding two. Hansell and John Chapoton supplied the assists for the scores.

The Stingrays attacked with Matthew Saucier scoring and Brennan Marlowe, Luca Giardino and Greg Lamier applying pressure.

Cited as standouts on defense for the Stingrays were Courtney Egan and Austin Ladner, as well as Cody Cannon and Brandon Higgins. Defensive heroes for the Renegades were Garrett Conn, Chris France, John-Michael Stribling and Chris Lee.

HAMMERHEADS VS VOLCANOS

The Bayou Caddy Seafood Hammerheads handed the Volcanos their first loss of the season behind the scoring of Josh Lingsch and Colin Wilson.

Many of the outstanding plays were of a defensive nature with Brooks Breland, Michael Cure, Whitney Bowne and Josh Maidenbaum stepping up and stopping several breakaways by the Mont Electric Volcanos and Sean Olsen, T. J. Koger, Tre Hamilton and Chris Caliva stopping a barrage of Hammerhead shots.

In addition to Lingsch and Wilson, the Hammerheads were led offensively by Patrick Donohoe. Trey Mauffray had a number of saves in the goal for the Hammerheads, and Bruce Rushing symied a Volcano one-on-one break-away.

T. J. Koger, Kyle Sick and Michael Kivlan supplies the Volcano offense, and Jennifer Magee, Christopher Magee and Derrick Ladner were outstanding on defense.

ASK THE V.A.

By Donald Mauffray

Q. I am a veteran, and I want to start my own business. Can a veteran get a business loan from the VA?

A. The VA does not have a business loan program. However, you may be eligible to get a loan from the Small Business Administration (SBA).

The SBA gives preference to veterans for business loans and, since 1983, has administered a direct loan program from Vietnam-era and disabled veterans who are unable to obtain financing from commercial or other lenders.

SBA field offices have veterans' affairs officers. For additional information, contact either the nearest SBA field office or call the SBA toll-free at 1-800-827-5722.

Q. What is the easiest way for me to find out what benefits I am entitled to receive from the VA?

A. Veterans and dependents from throughout the country may obtain information on VA benefits by calling the toll-free number 1-800-827-1000. Callers are automatically connected to the VA regional office serving the area from which their call originates.

VA has a number of other nationwide toll-free telephone services, including: Life Insurance, 1-800-669-8477; Radiation Helpline, 1-800-827-0365; Debt Management Center, 1-800-827-0648; Education Loan, 1-800-326-8276; Telephone Communication Device for the Deaf (TDD), 1-800-929-4833; and CHAMP-VA, 1-800-733-8387.

Q. Will my VA pension be adversely affected because I received compensation to repair my home damaged by Hurricane Andrew?

A. Generally, no. If you receive benefits under the Improved Pension program, compensation for damages to your home is not considered income for pension purposes as long as it is not more than repair costs. If you started receiving a pension before 1979, however, the payments might be considered income and should be reported to VA.

Q. What is SMOCTA?

A. The Service Members Occupational Conversion and Training Act is a program designed to encourage employers to hire and train veterans. Jointly implemented by VA and the Department of Labor and Defense, SMOCTA is targeted to assist veterans meeting specific eligibility criteria and employers who establish approved training and offer prospects of long-term employment for participating veterans. Eligible veterans have been discharged after August 1, 1990.

They also must have military specialties not readily transferable to a civilian workforce, be entitled to or be eligible for compensation for a VA service-connected disability rating of 30 percent or more, or be unemployed for at least eight of the 15 weeks prior to applying for SMOCTA benefits.

Interested veterans and employers should contact their local employment of Job Service locations for details, applications and assistance.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1993-1B

Pass pays tribute to our marine resources

BY AMY PICKICH

Some 6,500 festival-goers attended the third annual Celebrate the Gulf Marine Education Festival in the Pass Christian harbor Saturday.

The day-long event of demonstrations, exhibits and entertainment focused on the Gulf of Mexico's resources and how states bordering the Gulf are rich in natural abundance. More than 30 exhibitors participated.

Big attractions included the U.S. Coast Guard's sea-air rescue demonstrations and the Pass Christian Dive and Rescue team with underwater canine assistance.

The Kid's Fishing Rodeo and the "Recycle Redfish" program were also a big hit, according to organizer Sue Chamberlain.

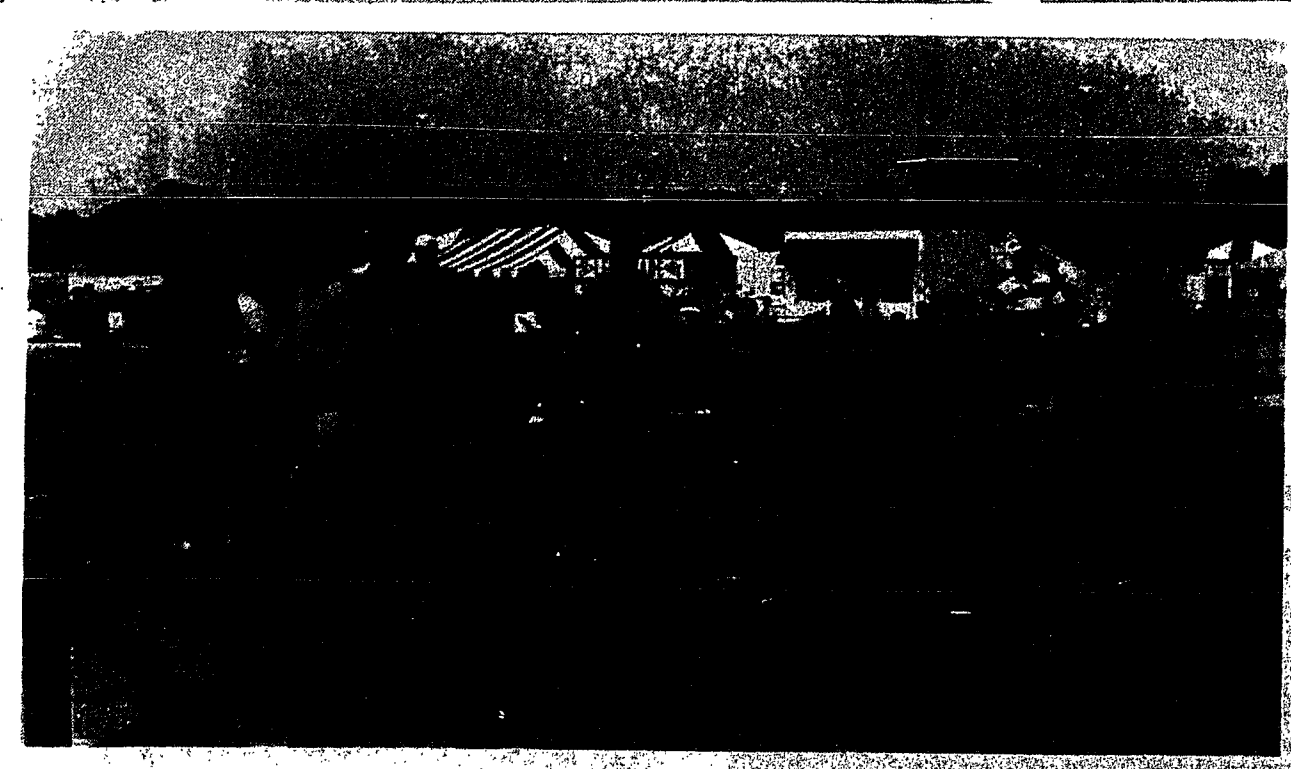

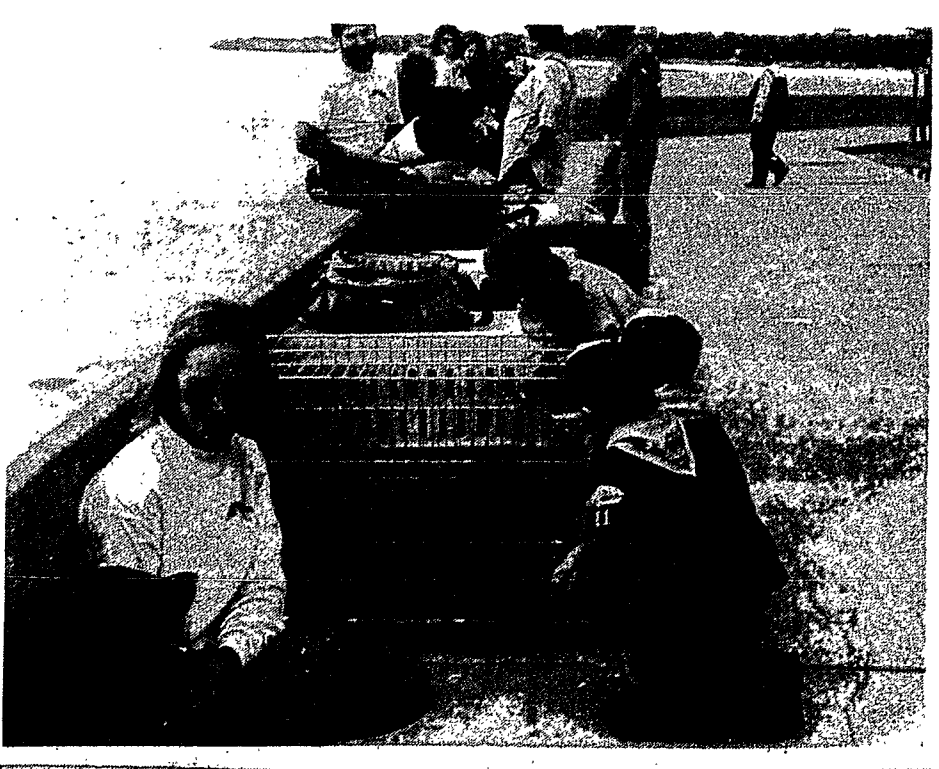

Chamberlain said one of the most interesting exhibits was the Shallow Water Oil Skimmer on display by Chevron. She said the vessel soaks up oil with only a 10-inch draft.

Clockwise from top, 1993 Celebrate the Gulf patrons at the Pass Christian harbor; original Osprey nest replica built and relocated in DeLisle by Mississippi Power Company; hands-on marine and ecological displays educated and entertained; fishermen young and old participated in the catch-and-release fishing rodeo; underwater rescue dogs take a break between demonstrations; food and refreshments were also a big attraction; fishermen register for the Kid's Fishing Rodeo.

Controlling spending addictions

By Janet K. Lukens

Area Consumer Money
Management Specialist

No one has a completely realistic view of money. In some way, we have all used money to achieve psychological satisfaction.

Money addictions take this phenomenon beyond what is normal. Addictive spending has nothing to do with the money spent or the item bought but an inner need of that individual. Some spend or shop to alleviate loneliness. Others use money for power, controlling their family, employees, charities and friends.

Some need money for security, especially those of the depression generation. Some use money to achieve social acceptance, trying to keep up with and impress their peers. Some are seeking stimulation, sensation, pleasure that can come from winning or "striking it rich."

Cash and credit cards, just like alcohol and drugs can temporarily relieve feelings of powerlessness, emptiness, loneliness, even failure. They also give the user a strong sense of well-being — a "high."

Money sickness and addictions were around before the arrival of gaming on the Mississippi Coast. Gambling, however, has certainly increased the visibility of such addictions.

The sensation of winning money and the "promise" of riches is an irresistible temptation that Coast residents face every day.

From my perspective, it has also increased the cost of compulsive spending. Impulsive and compulsive spending at the mall seldom causes thousands of dollars worth of debt in a single day.

Some spending addictions cannot be cured with wise money management. They require intense work under the guidance of an individual therapist or through a 12-step program.

However, the individual who has begun to experience difficulty in control of spending or compulsions to gamble should begin as soon as possible to look at ways to protect their financial security.

If a family is involved, family members should look at ways to help apart from lending money and "bailing out" the victim.

The following are simple money management tips that can help to keep minor problems with spending under control:

—Analyze when and under what circumstances the problem usually occurs. Take steps to change those circumstances to alleviate some temptation. Take another route home from work, spend time with friends who don't gamble or spend excessively, plan activities that keep you away from temptation.

—Don't take credit cards or more cash than necessary with you.

—Make a detailed budget and know what you are giving up if you spend compulsively. Every dollar spent is a trade-off.

Are you trading off your child's college education or even next week's lunch money?

Write down what you are giving up before you spend the money. Throw the paper away just as you are throwing away that future purchase.

If the behavior continues inspite of these efforts, additional help should be sought.

Weatherizing saves winter costs

By Linda S. Moore
MSU Ag Communications

Lower winter utility bills could be the payback to homeowners using basic weatherizing procedures on houses during the fall.

Dr. Jack Carroll, coordinator for the Energy Extension Center at Mississippi State University, said two primary ways to save on heating costs is by caulking and weatherstripping doors. These methods also will reduce cooling bills in the summer.

"Normally, the payback for weatherstripping and caulking results within one year," Carroll said. "The expense involved will be determined by the quality and longevity of the material used. The buyer should decide which factors are most important for their personal needs."

Caulking and weatherstripping material will cost between $40 and $50 for the average house (12 windows, two doors). Savings in annual energy costs could be up to 10 percent.

Longer-lasting caulking materials such as silicone (20 years) and butyl rubber (seven to 10 years) cost more than acrylic latex (five to seven years) or the lowest costing oil-base (one to two years).

Carroll said weatherstripping is used primarily around doors. Materials are available from the lowest cost foam or felt strips to the higher costing interlocking strips or door shoes and thresholds.

The energy specialist said door sweeps attaching to the bottoms of doors are another alternative. He said sweeps are especially good in homes where elderly are present and tripping over thresholds is a concern. Although they tend to wear out quicker, door sweeps can sup-

Carroll said special purchased covers or homemade covers over wall unit air conditioners will prevent incoming drafts.

Make special efforts to decrease outside air from filtering in through holes around water pipes, vents, outlets. Insulators for outlets are available on the market, and foam when gaps and cracks are less than 1/4 inch wide. Look for a caulking material that is expected to remain flexible over a 20-year lifetime.

Expanding foam sealants are an excellent choice when sealing larger cracks and holes that are protected from sunlight and moisture. Use a rigid foam insulation when sealing large openings such as plumbing chases and attic hatch covers.

The specialist cautioned against covering roof vents and foundation vents to decrease drafts. He said vents are important for removal of moisture.

Carroll said weatherizing efforts must be combined with careful thermostat control for homeowners to notice a reduction in the energy costs. Fuel costs can be saved for every degree reduced from the average temperature in the home during the heating season.

Some older people may require higher indoor temperatures — above 65 degrees — at all times to avoid accidental hypothermia. However, most people concerned with comfort can dress warmly to adjust to lower indoor temperatures.

plement existing wooden thresholds.

Other weatherizing practices include placing a heavy grade plastic over windows as temporary storm windows. Plastic, which is ideal if more costly permanent storm windows are not an option, will work just as well as permanent storm windows.

insulation can be stuffed around pipes and vents to reduce unwanted air flow.

"Hidden air leaks are among the largest heat loss sources in most older homes. Deciding on what to use in sealing these leaks depends on the size of the gaps and when they are located," Carroll said.

"Caulk is the best choice

Schindler participates in ceremony

Midshipman Emile A. (Beau) Schindler, III of Bay St. Louis recently participated in Acceptance Day ceremonies at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy in Kings Point, NY.

The colorful event annually marks the official "acceptance" of the freshman, or plebe, class into the ranks of the academy's regiment of midshipmen.

A graduate of St. Stanislaus High School, Midshipman Schindler with some 250 plebes, was administered the academy and the U.S. Naval Reserve oaths by the federal maritime school's superintendent, Rear Adm. Thomas T. Matteson.

Schindler was nominated to the academy by Congressman Gene Taylor.

The plebe class reported in July to the academy, which is operated by the Maritime Administration of the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Located in the Valena C. Jones Bldg. at 301 Old Spanish Trail in Bay St. Louis, the center serves Hancock County citizens 60 plus years of age.

Under the Hancock County Human Resource Agency, the center provides classes in ceramics, macrame, art, counted cross stitch, silk flowers, ornaments, framing and various other crafts. A morning snack is provided with donations from various clubs and businesses.

The center has a contract to provide 35 home delivered meals a day to those seniors who cannot provide for themselves, and 25 meals for those who have a need for a hot well-balanced meal daily in the cafeteria at the center.

Transportation is provided through a contract with Coast Area Transportation for most seniors in the county to bring them into the center, or to take them to the grocery, doctor, etc.

The contract with Methodist

Senior Services provides two home-makers for about two hours a week to homebound, needy seniors to do light housekeeping or errands for them.

For more information, call the center at 467-9292 from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.
